ABOUT US

The idea of knowledge in various disciplines is getting highly complex in the continuously developing world. New developments in the society at large, therefore, pose challenges at the existing reservoir of techniques which are to be applied for the study of such complex developments. Sociology at the other hand requires certain mechanism to get apprised of social changes and phenomenon in the social structure which not only affect the individuals, communities, and society but also to the state as a whole. It is, consequently, of common understanding that innovation is also destined to emerge in order to tackle or understand these new significant structures in the society.

The very concept of research and innovation therefore takes a primary place wherein the researchers apply a number of techniques to study all these new developments and challenges. The usefulness of the research also lies in the fact that it not only provides a platform to the researchers to conduct study but also an independent, guided and systematic approach towards a discipline. The concept of innovation is also inherent with the idea of research wherein the timely interventions are required in the research techniques in order to appreciate the real problem of the taken research.

The Centre for Research and Innovation (CRI) of Geeta Institute of Law (GIL) under the guidance of Prof. (Dr.) Dharmender Patial, Dean, Geeta Institute of Law, Panipat, Delhi-NCR undeniably, takes into consideration the foundational facets of research and strives towards achieving excellence in the over all implementation of these core aspects which are of utmost importance to any discipline—be it social sciences or natural sciences.
